Dwelling the Difference: Presence Between the Real and the Digital.

This presentation explores Heidegger's concept of presence (Anwesen) and its intrinsic relation to absence as a way to rethink digitality, especially the phenomenon of virtuality. Moving beyond the framework of Gestell, the talk investigates how presence, understood as excess and unavailability, offers a deeper ontological perspective on the digital. The aim is to highlight the limits of virtual presence and propose a new way of inhabiting the space "in-between": a thinking that dwells the difference.
